Imogene's practice has emphasized primarily in workers' compensation, employer liability, and zoning. While in Knoxville, she gave time to a district investigating committee for the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners. They would verify the fitness of applicants for a license to practice law. Her clients always benefit from her respect of the law and ability to communicate clear options for their interest.

Imogene served nine years as a commissioner on the Knoxville/Knox County Metropolitan Planning Commission, including two years as its Chairman, served on the local Urban Growth Policy Commission and Knoxville Civil Service Merit Board, and was a commissioner on the Knoxville/Knox County Charter Commission during the last attempt to unify Knoxville city and Knox county government.

After graduating from the University of Tennessee College of Law she worked as a special assistant U.S. Attorney in Tennessee, Alabama, and Virginia with the U.S. Department of the Interior. She joined Frantz, McConnell & Seymour, LLP in 1990.

When she is away from the office, Imogene likes to travel with her husband. She has served on the boards of directors of the East Tennessee Historical Society and its Foundation. She has been in Leadership Knoxville, and served on the boards of the Girl Scouts of America and the Knoxville Volunteer Rescue Squad.

Imogene's passion for finding ways to effectively serve – her clients and the community – is a wonderful asset. Her clients always benefit from her vast experience.
