While practicing primarily in the areas of personal injury, labor and employment, products liability, consumer protection and general civil litigation, John also maintains an active general civil litigation and appellate practice. He delivers just what clients need – knowledgeable, responsive representation.

John joined Frantz, McConnell & Seymour, LLP in 1990. He is a Rule 31 certified general civil mediator by the Tennessee Supreme Court. He has tried cases – jury and non-jury – in state courts throughout East Tennessee, and he has represented clients on appellate matters before the Tennessee Court of Appeals, the Tennessee Supreme Court, and the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. John was selected in 2014 for Super Lawyers in the area of Labor and Employment.

Away from the office, John is a dedicated family man who has a heart for service. He is currently a member of the board of directors of Susannah's House which serves the needs of chemically dependent mothers and their infants who are recovering from substance abuse. And as the father of four sons, he has enjoyed many years of coaching baseball and basketball for youth teams. John enjoys recharging time backpacking in the Appalachian Mountains and wilderness travel. Currently, he serves on the legal advisory council of the Tennessee Chapter of the Nature Conservancy helping to develop and implement habitat conservation planning.

John takes a practical approach to making sure clients fully understand their legal situation and available options. It is his priority to quickly address any questions or concerns his clients may have.
