With all of his cases, Matt makes it a priority to be accessible to his clients – anytime. He develops relationships making every case much more than just a transaction. Matt is practiced in fields as various as defense of the First Amendment, title litigation, representation of government officials, tax, and business planning to complex litigation.

He is licensed to practice in the U.S. Supreme Court, U.S. Court of Appeals in the Sixth District and the U.S. Tax Court as well as in state and federal courts throughout Tennessee. Matt is a member of the Knoxville and Tennessee Bar Associations.

Matt is a third-generation lawyer who grew up in Knoxville. He received his undergraduate degree from Vanderbilt and his law degree from the University of Tennessee in 2002. While in law school, he worked for U.S. District Judge James Jarvis and served as an Acting Assistant District Attorney General in Knox County. After law school, he was privileged to serve as a judicial clerk for Justice Riley Anderson of the Supreme Court of Tennessee and for Judge Charles Susano of the Court of Appeals of Tennessee. Matt joined Frantz, McConnell & Seymour, LLP in 2004 and became a partner in 2012. He returned to school to earn his LL.M. in taxation from the University of Alabama to better serve his clients' complicated business and tax law needs.

Matt primarily works with title litigation, business planning, real property disputes, and complex litigation. He truly listens to his clients, and uses his expertise to develop creative solutions. Matt is always accessible for any questions or concerns his clients might have.
